GOULD AND GORDON.

Horace Greeley Gives His Testimony in the Case.

His First Introduction and Subsequent Acquaintance with the "Lord."

Proposed Reconciliation of the Conflicting Eric Interests by Means of "Lord" Gordon's Infinence.

The following testimony was taken on an examination pesterday to be used in further proceedings in the re-markable case in which Jay Gould and Gordon Gordon Surfaces Could. Course of the Argentine Research of Source Jay Could vs. George Gordon, cheresise Research Source in Gordon, Colly and County of New York se.—Horace Greeley being first sworn deposes and rays as follows:

Q. When did you not become acquainted with Mr. Gordon't A. I should say in February last.

Q. Upon whose introduction t A. Mr. John V. Sears, who occasionally worked for the Tribune, invited me to old you understand from Mr. Sears who he was i as he introduced as Lord Gordon? A. That is that I understood.

Q. And represented himself to be Lord Gordon? A. I puldn't say that; he signed notes to me "Gordon;" I suidn't say he called himself Lord Gordon.

Q. When he was introduced as Lord Gordon did he bject to the introduction in any way? A. No, sir.

Q. In your interviews with him have you usually adressed him as Lord Gordon? A. I think I addressed him sd him as Lord Gordon? A. I think I addressed that way, but not usually.

But you have done so? A. Yes.
And when you have done so he has made no objecA. I never observed it.
Do you recellect having an interview with Colonel,
'Yeo President of the Penusylvania Central Railwith reference to Lord Gordon? A. I came over Philadelphia with Mr. Scott and understood he was bord Gordon, and in fact I came up in his carriage but to Gordon's room. Philadelphia wind in fact I came up in Lord Gordon, and in fact I came up in Lord Gordon's room.

When was that? A. About the 1st of March; I fix When was that? A. About to speak at an emigrant fate because I went over to speak at an emigrant ace date because I went over to speak at an emigrant secting.

Q. And what time did you return with Mr. Scott? A. Scott? A. Scott in the section of the sect

A So far as I know, I said, "This is Colonel Scot"—I think so.

Q. And you introduced Lord Gordon as Lord Gordon to Colonel Scott F. A. I presume so.

Q. Now, throughout your acquaintance with Lord Gordon has he at any times said to you that he was not Lord Gordon, or did he disavow that fittle at any time? A. No, sir; I have no recollection of his doing so.

Q. From first to last, during your acquaintance, until resembly, you had no reason to suppose that he was not what so claimed to be—Lord Gordon? A. No, sir, I have no knowledge to the contrary now.

Q. How recently have you seen him? A. It may be three weeks, possibly only two.

Q. You have had some interviews at which Mr. Gould was present? A. I met Mr. Gould casually at his place; I don't know that there was any intentional meeting; I called for some reason, and I think I found Mr. Gould two or three times at his place.

Q. Have you taken part in any conversation with reference to the affairs of the Eric Railway—I mean interviews at which Mr. Gould was present? A. I heard conversation, but I couldn't say what part I took; not much part.

Q. Are you able to state, from your present recollection, riewant which Mr. Gould was present? A. I heard conversations, but I couldn't say what part I took; not much part.

Q. Are you able to state, from your present recollection, what these conversations were? A. Yes, sir; I will state; Lord Gordon, at the first interview I had with him, had nothing to say about the Eric road, and talked about emigration to Virginia, and so on; but at the later interviews I had with him, before I saw Mr. Gould, he spoke as though he was deeply interested in the Eric Railway; he owned a good deal of its stock, he said; he had other friends interested, and he had the impression that an arrangement might be made between the stockholders and Mr. Gould whereby Mr. Gould's services would be preerved to the read under the forthcoming reorganization; he thought those services, with his experience, would be very valuable; that was the drift of his conversation with me, and also, so far as my recollection goes, to Colonel Scott in my presence; it was to have an understanding between foreign stockholders and Mr. Gould whereby they could all be combined harmoniously with benefit to both; that was the drift of his conversation. Q. Did you hear him at any time state what was the extent of the interest controlled by him in the Eric road? A. No, sir, not definitely; I understood it was quite large. Q. Are you able from your recollection to distinguish what you heard from him in the presence of Mr. Gould from what you heard when he was not there? A. Its purport and the first presence of the found from what you heard when he was not there? A. Its purport and the presence of Mr. Gould how the poor it and when he had the first him the free out; all that I heard was in all these interviews—that If Mr. Gould and the foreign stockholders could be reconciled and go on together that it would be beneficial to all parties; that is the drift of it.

Q. How frequent were your interviews with Lord Gordon? A. I should say I met him there four or five times

How frequent were your interviews with Lord Gor-A. I should say I met him there four or five times a Metronolite.

con! A. I should say I met him there four or five times in the Metropolitan.

Q. Has Mr. Sears, who is now his secretary, ever been your private secretary? No, sir; but he has been employed occasionally to work for us.

Q. You were infroduced to him by Mr. Sears? A. I think Sears came to me and said be would like me to see him, being concerned in emigration movements; nothing to do with railways, and he would like to con-sult me.

Q. Did you have any other information, with the exception of that from Sears, with respect to his being Lord Gordon? A. I met other gentlemen with him; a Mr. Roberts, a very respectable neighbor of mine, a farry-town man, and other people; they seemed good clitzens.

Q. And they spoke of him as Lord Gordon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say that your first acquaintance was with reference to Virginia emigration schemes? A. His idea was bringing out Scotchmen to settle here, and I urged him to visit Virginia to see it before he decided on taking them visit Virginia to see it before he decided on taking them elsewhere; I thoughtit an excellent locality; I think he wanted to ask me questions in regard to Virginia.

Q. Has be conveyed to you the impression, during your acquaintance with him, of being a man of wealth? A. I considered him a man of large wealth, but that is partly from what Sears said to me and partly from what he said of his own.

from what Sears said to me and partly from what he said of his own.

A by well the let of me he had purchased largely, and of the Northern Pacific Railrond.

Q bid he say to what extent? A No sir, but that it was a large purchase, and he intended to purchase more. It was a large body or bodies of land.

Q and was that in connection with emigration sehemes? A Yes, str.

Q. When you talked with him with reference to Virginia purchases and emigration matters did he speak of desiring to purchase large tracts of land? A. He intended to do a great deal in the way of emigration by bringing over colonists here, and I think I suggested Virginia, saying I thought it was an admirable region—better than to go far West for people who are accustomed to civilization.

Q. Did you hear him say anything about other investments in property or interests than this Northern Pacific Railroad purchase? A. He was talking of buying a property in Westchester, in Tarrytown, I bedieve; he talked to Roberts about it.

Q. Anything with reference to his stock or securities?

erty in Westchester, in Tarrytown, I believe; he talked to Roberts about it. Q. Anything with reference to his stock or securities? A. I don't remember other than the Eric stock. Q. And with reference to Eric he gave you the impression that he owned or controlled a large interest? A. That he owned considerable, and could control or infigure a good deal more. That he owned considerable, and could control or in-flenuce a good deal more.

Q. And also that he could control or influence, as I un-derstand you, the English stockholders? A. I could not say the English stockholders, but certainly foreign stock-holders.

Q. It covered all? A. He said big crowds; I don't know be said the English. Q. It covered all? A. He said big crowds; I don't know he said the English.

It was not; that he wrote a letter himself; he didn't choose to send mine for some reason, and sent his own letter instead.

Q. Was any discussion had in your presence and in the presence of Mr. Gould with reference to the resignation of other members of the Board of Directors of the Eric Railway and the filling of their places? A. I think it was understood that certain of the Directors would resign or could be made to resign.

Q. Who, other than Mr. Roberts, do you recollect to have met at Lord Gordon's room or elsewhere in his company? A. I recollect Colonel Loomis, who was then land agent of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

Q. Any other person? A. I conduct remember: I think there was one or two, but I don't remember.

Q. Did Lord Gordon's room or elsewhere in bout his having made arrangements to move emigrants on to his Northern Pacific Railroad lands? A. No, sir.

Q. He stated simply he had purchased the lands? A. And I understood emigrants were ready to come forward when he had the lands ready; he didn't say about agragements.

I don't know whether there was or not; I can't remember any word said; it was a matter that didn't interest me; I think it tended to show that Mr. Gould was disposed to do anything reasonable; that is the impression madon me—to do anything that could be fairly done to on me—to do anything that could be fairly done to a just and fair settlement with the other 'after interested; Mr. Gould was very reserved; 'arties interested but Mr. Gould ever in your prometer and in the presence of Mr. Gordon promise 'at it the directors of the Eric Pailway would con!' at it the directors of the line has would immediately cut Wall street? Presence.
Q. D.: Mr. Gould ever promise to cut Wall street or get out of Wall street? A. No, sir; no promise; I told him that I thought the management of the road ought to be entirely separated from Wall street, and I talked so to Lord Gordon, and very likely I talked so to him, but I don't remember any promise made; my advice was that he should get out of it.
Q. Mr. Gordon, in speaking of an interview had with don't remember any promise made; my advice was that he should get out of it.

Mr. Gorden, in speaking of an interview had with the fould on March 6, says:—"During our conversation Mr. Gorden Mr. Greeley came in; the proposed change in the policy of the management of the line was talked over with Mr. Greeley wery fully and freely; I explained to Mr. Greeley in Gould's presence the proposals made by me or effecting a change in the policy of the company and that Gould and I were to co-operate to secure that end; Mr. Greeley, upon this, congratulated Gould on the prospect of a change in the policy of the management and strongly advised him to follow the course which I had laid down for him; he told him, very emphatically, among other things, that he must let the stockholders have control of their own property, and if, by the election, his connection with the line was continued, he must immediately cut Wall street, all of which Gould promised be would do." A Gould's promising I can't remember; but that I talked in that vein is certainly true, and I was rejoiced at the idea that there was to be a reconcillation all around.

O. What did Mr. Gordon say to you when you came in rejoiced at the idea that there was to be a reconcillation all around.

Q. What did Mr. Gordon say to you when you came in on that occasion with reference to the proposed change in the management of the road; what were the details?

A. Very few; because he and I had been talking at various times about what ought to be done, and the purport was that Mr. Gould had fallen in with his ideas and that all would be arranged between them.

Q. And what were his ideas? A. That there should be a perfect reconciliation between the English stockholders and Gould and his party, and there should be a settlement and compromise and all should go on together.

Q. And other directors should be brought in? A. That the foreign stockholders.

Q. Mt. Gould to be continued in his position? A. That was the understanding.

Q. Mf. Gould to be continued in his position?

Q. Did you ever suggest or name Mr. James Brown as one of the new directors? A. I think I did, and Lucius Robinson; supposing there would be a new Board James Brown would be a good man to come in, and Lucius Robinson; I think I mentioned these men; I can't remem-Robinson; I think I mentioned these men; I can't remember any others.

Q. Did Mr. Gould and Lord Gordon have any papers out before them or in their hands at the time that you came in and this conversation occurred? A. No other than that resignation; that is the only paper I remember.

Q. When you came in Lord Gordon says, "During our conversation Mr. Horace Greeley came in," and then followed this conversation regarding the organization of the road at that time—did they have any papers before them?

A. I have no recollection, except only the one paper; I remember this resignation, which Lord Gordon showed me.

Was Mr. Sears present at that conversation? A. I Q. was Mr. Sears present at that conversation? A. Couldn't remember.
Q. Do you recollect sending Mr. Gould a letter in which you speak of Gordon as Lord Gordon? A. He wrote me a letter about him, and I answered it; I should say that I answered it the same day as he wrote him: I mean as to calling him Lord Gordon; this was since their differences, I think; he first-called on me here to ask what I knew about him: I told him I only knew two things from Mr. Sears—that Mr. Sears told me he had seen this Erie stock in Gordon's hands, and I believed Sears when he wrote me a note afterwards about him, and I answered him. him. To that answer, do you recollect whether you spoke of Gordon as Lord Gordon? A. I presume I did.

GOODALE, Notary Public (No. 23), New York city.

This case, in which Jay Gould seeks to recover from This case, in which Jay Gould seeks to recover from Gordon some $300,000 in railroad stocks and other securities, alleged to have been retained illegally by the defendant, the particulars of which have been fully published, was to have come up for a hearing vesterday in the Supreme Court, Chambers, before Judge Brady. As the case promised to be a lengthy one, and the Judge desired time to examine the papers in the habeas corpus case argued before him on the previous day, with a view to a speedy decision, the hearing was postponed till this morning.
